He declares that he can see light and that he has hopes of having his vision so restored as to be able to distinguish moving objects. King left Bisbee last fall. He will spend several months here on his present trip.

"SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST"

A proprietary medicine like everything else that comes before the public has to prove its merit. It has to meet competition. The law of the "Survival of the Fittest" applies to this as to other things. The fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after forty years of success is still one of the largest sellers proves that it is a dependable, standard remedy for the ailments of womanhood, and one in which they may have perfect confidence.—Advertisement.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the miners of the Southwestern mines for the memorial tablet which they so kindly had made from gold taken from above mine for our husband and father and presented to us. Mrs. A. G. Watkins and daughters. (Advertisement) (390)

"FLYING TORPEDO" MOST SPECTACULAR FEATURE OF MONTHS

Griffith Supervised Picture is Superlative in Every Way. Accompanying Keystone Comedy a Scream

How an eccentric detective story writer foiled the enemies of this country and made possible the use of a novel means of defense which saved the nation is told in a thrilling story of the future called "The Flying Torpedo." This Fine Arts-Triangle story plays at the Orpheum today from 1 to 10 for the last time. Because of this nation's unpreparedness, there is much doubt and confusion among the people. There has been a board of defense organized including the most distinguished inventors. At the suggestion of the head of the board, an offer of $1,000,000 is made for the most useful invention for defense purposes. Winthrop Clavering (John Emerson), an eccentric author, suggests to his friend Bartholomew Thompson (Spottiswoode Aitken) that he perfect an aerial torpedo governed by wireless. Clavering advances funds to Thompson, who goes immediately to work.

The flying torpedo is finally perfected and at a private test it meets every requirement. There is a band of international crooks, who have spies watching the test. That night the crooks steal the wireless torpedo from Thompson's workshop. Then Thompson sets to work with the encouragement and financial assistance of Clavering to make another model for the government experts. The crooks send one of their number in

GOLD IN PRESCOTT.

That Prescott has been slumbering for years on a floor of gold is indicated by pinnings made from excavations on the new Yavapai county courthouse. Assays of the ore taken from the trenches for the courthouse foundation give returns of from 85 cents to $1.15 a cubic yard. The value of the gold deposits in the ground on which the courthouse is to stand, to a depth of only twelve feet is estimated at close to $30,000, while it is conceded that the value of the gold deposits under the new courthouse will increase with depth. The discovery of rich gold deposits on the site of the new courthouse has recalled to many the fact that when Prescott was being rebuilt in 1900, following a disastrous fire, scores of cellar-diggers turned up rich placer deposits.

COYOTE RABIES SPREADING.

Coyote rabies has made its appearance in southeastern Nevada, and is rapidly spreading toward the Arizona line, according to reports brought here by arrivals from Goldfield and Oatman, and it will be only a matter of time until the disease reaches northwestern Arizona. Stockmen there are hopeful that the disease will not cross the Colorado river, and that the canyon of that stream will act as a natural barrier to prevent its spread into Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. The disease, which made its first appearance in Wallawa county, Oregon, five years ago, has spread south through Nevada and California, and is now threatening the southwestern states. It has caused millions of dollars worth of damage to stock in the territory over which it has spread.

FLOOD IN DIXIE.

According to people from Dixie Canyon the several ruins of last week did not pick on Bisbee and the Warren District exclusively, but that neighborhood had a severe cloudburst. The garage, in which was stored a practically new Willys-Knight automobile, of Will Stevenson, was flooded and sand to about a depth of four feet was piled around it. Though it was damaged beyond repair, the machine will be out of commission for some weeks. Little other damage is reported from the section.

the guise of a telephone inspector to Thompson. He affixes a capsule to the receiving arm of a telephone in the workshop. When an accomplice calls up Thompson, the inventor unhook the receiver and is suffocated by the fumes from the broken capsule. Clavering finds his suspicions aroused as to the cause of the inventor's death, when he finds the capsule. He later confirms them, when a member of the band attempts to assassinate the assistant of Thompson. Hulda, the Swedish maid in the inventor's home, shows a warning that had been sent to the inventor prior to his death. Clavering enlists the aid of the girl in recovering the stolen torpedo. He opens an office opposite to a drugstore, in the rear of which he finds the plotters have their headquarters. While all the band but one are away he enters the drugstore and busies the druggist in filling a prescription. He discharges a gas through the keyhole of a door, where a woman accomplice of the crooks is on guard. The druggist later finds the woman unconscious and gives to Clavering as a supposed doctor for aid.
